

The Employment Rights Act 2025 Training

The Employment Rights Act 2025 ('ERA 2025') introduces significant changes for all employers, including across recruitment and workplace practices, dismissals and collective redundancies and marks a fundamental shift in the potential role of trade unions for every workplace. While it may be tempting to defer action until all proposals are finalised, key changes will be introduced in stages throughout 2026 and 2027, requiring you to assess proactively the impact on your business and manage compliance as new requirements take effect.

This practical training helps employers understand the key reforms, know the risk areas and identify steps that can be taken now to start to prepare in a proportionate way, without over engineering.

WHAT OUR TRAINING COVERS

Delivered by experienced employment lawyers, our training covers the following content:

KEY REFORMS UNDER THE ERA 2025

A focused overview of the core reforms and risk areas including: changes to unfair dismissal; family-friendly protections and SSP; trade unions; harassment; fire and rehire; and collective redundancies. The precise content will be tailored to the priorities of your business.

OPERATIONAL IMPACT AND RISK

The practical implications of the reforms including on workforce decisions, management practices and legal risk.

PRACTICAL, PROPORTIONATE READINESS

Steps employers can take now to reduce risk and support preparation, without committing to premature change.
